

New Elevator Pitch #2

Hello! Nice to meet you, my name is Tom and I recently transitioned from a successful career in HVAC where I was known for my top-tier customer service and attention to detail, to now programming through the use of a Bootcamp called Codeboxx. My passion for programming has been with me since childhood which has always inspired me via my father who worked on top-secret government programming projects during the Cold War. I've spent years studying the history of computer science, dabbling in coding and admiring the pioneers who shaped the field. Now I am skilled in Java, JavaScript, Ruby, React, and Node. I also took part recently with a team that went on to win at the Tampa Bay Hackathon at USF. I'm eager to bring my technical expertise, dedication and lifelong enthusiasm for programming to your development team. I'm also excited about the opportunity to contribute and grow with your company! Thank you!
